Your Dog is 'Talking' to You, Are You Listening?

One of my favorite things to do at the sanctuary is to meet and get to know our potential adopters. Some are seasoned dog guardians, others are adding to 'their pack' and some are first time pet parents. No matter what the situation, everyone is equally excited to be welcoming a new dog into their homes and into their hearts. We work together to find the very best fit for their lifestyle and for their family. Nothing makes me happier than to see it all come together and to confidently send one of our loved residents home.

It's so exciting to prepare for your new dog's homecoming. So much to think about and to buy. A cozy new bed, a crate, a collar, leash and properly fitted harness, nutritious food, toys, just to name a few. There's something else you can do to prepare, something that will strengthen your relationship and make both of you happy. Learn to listen to what your dog is saying! Yup, your dog is talking to you, all the time. Don't you feel better when you're understood? So will your dog. If you learn to read your dog's body language and what they are communicating by their actions, it will change the way you interact with them, let you know what they are feeling and it may prevent something unfavorable from happening.

When a dog wags its tail it's happy, right? Yes, sometimes, but not always. Tail position and movement, or lack of, can tell you if a dog is happy, curious, being submissive, agitated or signaling aggression. Dogs communicate to us that they are feeling anxious or stressed by yawning (out of the context of sleep), lifting a paw, licking their lips (without food being involved), panting, excessive shedding (have you noticed how much your dog sheds at the vet?), turning their head, the list goes on! Growling is a form of communication that you never want to punish. A growl is telling you that your dog is uncomfortable and wants you (or something) to stop or he may have to take things further.

Just from these few examples you can see how much your dog has to say! Situations just don't happen out of the blue, your dog is giving you a heads up. You owe it to them to learn their language, advocate for them and to always have their back. Your bond will be that much stronger!

Dealing with Grief in Animal Welfare

As the director of Hallie Hill, one of the most difficult parts of my job is making end-of-life decisions. My first year at the sanctuary, I fell in love with a white lab mix named Timmy. His photograph is hanging in the bunkhouse. He was an absolute joy to be around. 'Best dog ever' could easily describe him. As he aged, he developed joint issues as well as congestive heart failure. I was so upset when we agreed that it was time to let him go, that I questioned whether I had the mettle to handle this job. Could I continue working with so many seniors knowing that as they age, and their care becomes more intensive, they would become even more enmeshed in my heart? I had to realize that we are here for them. Our job is to love them and then have the strength to accept the pain of eventually letting them go. We say we can't change an animal's past. We don't know what they endured before arriving at the sanctuary, but we want to ensure that each animal experiences love and compassion in their time here at Hallie Hill.

Anyone who has worked in animal welfare at a shelter has faced the heartbreak of having to say goodbye to the animals that pass through. Assistant Director, Michele Griffin, could tell you heart wrenching stories of her time at open intake shelters. She has my utmost respect for handling what she experienced with such grace and strength. Here at Hallie Hill we are extremely lucky that we are not faced with having to euthanize healthy animals. We only euthanize animals who do not have a good quality of life. The staff discusses physical and behavioral changes and we try to determine if the animal is having more good days than bad. We confer with our vets to determine if the time has come. Life is precious, so we don't want to cheat any animal out of even one good day, but we also don't want to allow any of our residents to suffer.

I have to take this opportunity to thank all of the staff and volunteers for opening their hearts to the residents of HH and making sure they experience love. Sometimes we share tears of joy when they are adopted and sometimes, we experience grief after their passing. It should remind us to treasure each moment we have with the very special animals that reside here at the sanctuary. -Jennifer Middleton, Executive Director, HHAS

Sweet Juliet (now Piper), adopted in May 2021, is "spoiled rotten and loved so much!" Piper, her mom and brother Baron, enjoyed their first RV trip together leaving Summerville in October and returning just a few weeks ago. * "Dodger is SO GREAT! He's such an easy pup, we still can't believe it. He has been the perfect addition to our family. ♥"

"Hallie, adopted 11/4/2021 from you is getting her sea legs. She is very much bonded with Buddy Junior. Today we are at the veterinary dentist getting some dental work done for her. She might even get new crowns on her teeth. She seems to now understand that the outside is for potty. The white tummy fur that was shaved for her mammary glands surgery last fall has grown back completely. We took her on one road trip with Buddy Junior and she's a very good traveler. She seems happy with us and we love her very much!"

Do you remember little "Baby?" She was found by a vacationing couple on a Sunday last September and was brought to the sanctuary. She had horrible skin and was covered with scabs. The couple went home to Virginia. They decided they wanted to adopt Baby and had vacationing friends pick her up to bring her "home."

to bring her "home." Baby, now Charlie, is doing great and has blossomed into a beautiful girll Her adopters, Rob and Cynthia, are so appreciative of the work we all do here at Hallie Hill.

Proud Dog Mom https://www.prouddogmom.com/dog-lick-mat/

Looking for ways to entertain your pooch while taking Zoom meetings? Or maybe you're in search of a healthy stress-relieving outlet for those times your pup seems a little on edge. Either way, I've got just the thing: A lick mat!

What is a Lick Mat?

fill Howle

Hallie

A lick mat is exactly what it sounds like: It's a flexible mat made from food-grade rubber that features shallow ridges and grooves. Using a butter knife, the back of a spoon, or even your fingers, you fill the grooves with soft/pureed food. The unique design encourages dogs to lick, lick, and lick some more ... until every ounce of goodness has vanished from their mat. (Versus taking big bites and quickly gobbling the snack).

Top Benefits of Lick Mats

Stress Relief: Licking is a comforting and soothing action for dogs. As they lick, endorphins are released, promoting an overall happy and calm feeling. So, if your dog gets overwhelmed during bath time, nail trims, or even thunderstorms, the lick mat can provide a delicious distraction.

Mental Stimulation: Beat boredom with a fun (and tasty) game! While the concept of licking food off a mat may seem simple, it will get your dog's brain working to figure out how to lick the mat clean. Think of it as a doggy puzzle.

Slows Down Eating: Is your pooch a food gobbler? While most dogs are food motivated, scarfing down meals too quickly can be quite dangerous. (Find out more about speed eating problems HERE). If your dog chows down on soft food, a lick mat is a great way to naturally slow them down.

Benefits Digestion: The act of licking helps increase saliva production. And, guess what? Increased saliva production can also aid digestion, as it contains beneficial enzymes.

Oral Health: The grooves and soft bristles on a lick mat scrape against your dog's teeth, gums, and tongue, helping to clean and remove particles/bacteria. (Of course, when it comes to oral health, nothing beats brushing)
